THE INSIDE LOOK

Tips for assessing your financial wellness

In the same way an annual physical checkup supports good health, a financial checkup will keep you on track with your financial goals. Here are five tips for assessing your financial health.

1. Maintain a budget.

This allows for proper planning of your spending and savings. One of the easiest ways to approach a budget is the 50/30/20 rule: 50% of your income for needs, 30% for wants, and 20% for savings and to pay down debt. Budgeting is essential for managing your finances effectively and achieving your short- and long-term financial goals.

2. Monitor your credit score.

The higher your credit score, the lower the cost of borrowing and the more lending options you'll have. A few steps you can take to improve your credit score include paying your bills on time, reducing the amount of debt you owe and checking your credit report for errors. To request a credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com.

3. Build an emergency savings.

An emergency fund can provide a safety net for unplanned expenses or financial emergencies. Strive to save three to six months' worth of living expenses. Even if you start small, putting a bit of money from each paycheck into a savings account can prevent you from relying on high-interest credit card debt.

4. Assess your insurance needs.

Consider what types of insurance you have and the appropriate coverage levels to meet your protection requirements. Request a policy review every three years or when you have major life changes to maintain the optimal coverage and pricing.

5. Save for retirement.

Start saving early and be consistent. Take advantage of compound interest, which is when you earn returns on your investments as well as returns on those returns. If your employer offers a 401(k), contribute at least up to the maximum match amount to avoid leaving free money on the table.

While these tips are a great start, keep in mind that monitoring financial wellness is an ongoing activity, just like with physical health. As your financial needs change over time, consider working with expert partners who can help you reach your goals.

GENE SCHAFFER
Parts Counter Rep.

Meet Your Parts Professional

How long have you been in the trucking industry?

Oh man...this is going to date me. I've been around trucks my whole career. I did truck equipment parts and sales for 26 years before later switching to truck sales for 4 years. I've now been working at the parts counter at Rihm Kenworth for about 8 months, since moving north last year.

What's your favorite thing about your job?

Meeting and talking with customers and getting to help them find solutions for all of their parts needs.

What is something on your bucket list?

I like to drive on less traveled roads, so someday I'd like to drive up to Alaska.
